After years of anticipation, the Corporate Manslaughter and Homicide Act 2007 became law on 6th April 2008. The Act will place emphasis on failures by Senior Managers which lead to death in the workplace and organisations will be open to unlimited fines and remedial and publicity orders.

This seminar is suitable for Directors, Managers, Safety Practitioners and others who may have a responsibility for ensuring that their organisation complies with current legislation.

The seminar will explore the background to the new Corporate Manslaughter and Homicide Act and discuss the main provisions of the new Act.
